Boy tests negative for Ebola: Officials

Bronx. The boy, who returned from Guinea, was tested after falling ill.

A Bronx boy who was hospitalized Sunday night has tested negative for Ebola, according to the New York City Department of Health and Mental Hygiene.

The 5-year-old boy, who had recently returned to the U.S. from Guinea, was taken to Bellevue Hospital on Sunday night by an EMS HAZ TAC unit.

He developed a fever early Monday morning, and an Ebola test was ordered.

Results came back about 6 p.m. on Monday.

"Out of an abundance of caution, further negative Ebola tests are required on subsequent days to ensure that the patient remains cleared," the health department said in a release. The boy will be tested for "common respiratory viruses" and will be held in isolation for further testing.

Dr. Craig Spencer, who returned from a Doctors Without Borders trip to Guinea on Oct. 17, and was hospitalized last week, remains in serious but stable condition. Earlier on Monday, Mayor Bill de Blasio declined to comment on the boy's condition, because test results were not yet back.

De Blasio urged New Yorkers to "pay attention to the facts" and not "give into fear" regarding health care workers in the city and their exposure to Ebola.

"The only way that there would even be a cause for concern is if one of them were to have any symptoms. To date, none have," de Blasio said. "People taking proper precautions, caring for these patients, are not a threat to anyone else. And if we treat heroic people who are serving us like there is something wrong with them, we do a disservice to the fight against Ebola."

NYC. Mayor signs law lowering speed limit

The city's speed limit is set to drop by 5 mph.

Mayor Bill de Blasio signed legislation Monday lowering the city's speed limit to 25 mph, unless posted otherwise. The drop from 30 mph "doubles the likelihood of a pedestrian surviving a crash," said the mayor's office.

"This is a major step toward achieving Vision Zero, and it depends on every New Yorker taking personal responsibility and putting the lives of their neighbors first," de Blasio said.

After Nov. 7, 90 percent of NYC streets will have a 25 mph or lower speed limit. The city expects to install 3,000 new speed limit signs in the next year. METRO

Fulton Center to finally open

A massive MTA project will come to an end on Nov. 10, when the Fulton Center finally opens for service at 5 a.m.

The transit hub has faced setbacks but is finally ready for its public unveiling.

In addition to housing 10 subway lines, the $1.4 billion space will eventually contain 25,000 square feet of shops and restaurants within an ultramodern structure equipped with a 90-foot-wide skylight, air-conditioning, digital video screens, a massive mezzanine dubbed the "mixing bowl" and easy connecting passages to nearby trains.

An opening ceremony for the Fulton Center is scheduled for Nov. 9, with the exact time and guests to be announced. METRO

Senegal kids beaten over Ebola

Two Bronx brothers were reportedly called "Ebola" and beaten up at their school Oct. 24 after being bullied about being from Senegal, one of the West African countries with an outbreak of the virus, according to multiple news reports.

Amadou Drame, 11, and Pape Drame, 13, recent immigrants from Senegal, were reportedly called the name of the virus and assaulted by students at I.S. 318. According to DNAinfo.com, the brawl began when Amadou's classmates assaulted him at lunch, prompting his older brother to come to his aid. METRO

Taylor Swift named NYC's Welcome Ambassador

Taylor Swift is the new face of New York City tourism.

On Monday, NYC Go announced that the pop star would serve as its latest Global Welcome Ambassador, informing visitors about this "absolutely overwhelmingly electric" destination, as she says in a new video.

The reveal came just a day before the release of Swift's latest album, "1989," which features the hit single "Welcome to New York." METRO

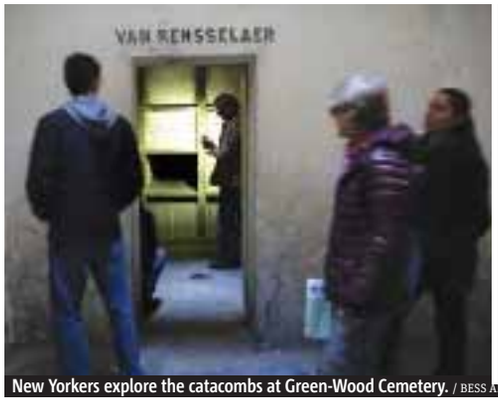
Green-Wood Catacombs tell a haunting tale of city life

Brooklyn. The underground chambers formed by glaciers play host to the remains of prominent old families.



New Yorkers explore the catacombs at Green-Wood Cemetery. / BESS ADLER, METRO

On Sunday, 150 visitors came to Green-Wood Cemetery, crunching through leaves to view the graves of the cemetery's famous and infamous residents.

The 500-acre cemetery is the final resting place of 560,000 people, including artist Jean-Michel Basquiat, Lincoln assassination witness Laura Keene and gang leader "Bill the Butcher."

Green-Wood historian Jeff Richman led the tour, decked out in a velvet cloak and a black top hat.

The ultimate stop, and one that elicited screams, was Green-Wood's nearly pitch dark catacombs.

The above-ground building was built in the 1850s, explained Richman. The space was carved out by glaciers, and lies between the cemetery's hills. The developers constructed an "above-ground apartment house," Richman said, instead of filling in the hole.

The 30-vault catacombs have 15 rooms on each side, in which multiple families are buried.

Perhaps its most famous resident, Richman said, is Ward McAllister, the "arbiter of society" in the Gilded Age, and who believed only 400 people in New York really mattered.

Inside, iron gates separate some of the family chambers, and coat of arms and other adornments break up the interior.

The private mausoleum is only opened on select occasions. The last burial in the catacombs was around the 1960s, Richman said.

"It's the unknown," said visitor Justine Fiore, when asked why she was there. "I like to be scared, but just a little bit."

Buried alive

"Above ground was very important in the 19th century, because they did not want to be buried alive."
Jeff Richman

Students, politicians rally for college sex assault victims

Public Advocate Letitia James, city council members and students rallied Monday at City Hall, announcing the introduction of a bill that would make more resources available to college students who have been sexually assaulted.

James said statistics show 1 in 5 college women are rape victims, and nearly half of them never tell anyone about it.

The public advocate said college officials need to do more when a sexual assault case is opened, including harsher punishment for perpetrators and support for the victims.

"From this point on, we will no longer refer to them as 'victims.' They're 'survivors,'" James said.

The rally was held ahead of an oversight hearing between City Council committees on women's issues, public safety, higher education and civil rights. METRO

US sues NYC, Computer Sciences over fraud claims

Manhattan. The suit claims that the city took advantage of a program that caused reimbursements for Medicaid.

The United States on Monday sued New York City and Computer Sciences Corp, accusing them of defrauding Medicaid into making millions of dollars of improper reimbursements by exploiting a computerized billing system that the company designed.

According to a complaint filed in U.S. District Court in Manhattan, the defendants took advantage of the system's automatic default settings, enabling the city to improperly boost the amount and speed of reimbursements for services provided to infants and toddlers with developmental delays.

U.S. Attorney Preet Bharara in Manhattan said some claims might have been covered by private insurance, while others should not have been billed to Medicaid. He said the fraud led to the city and Computer Sciences submitting tens of thousands of false claims to Medicaid from 2008 to 2012.

"CSC and the city created computer programs that systematically, and fraudulently, altered billing data in order to get paid by Medicaid as quickly as possible and as much as possible," Bharara said. REUTERS

The lawsuit alleges that the city and Computer Sciences improperly took money from the U.S. government. / GETTY IMAGES

Nuts and bolts of case

The lawsuit concerns early intervention program services, which are provided to children under the age of 3 who have developmental delays, or medical conditions such as autism and low birth weight that are associated with such delays.

- According to the federal government, the city and Computer Sciences engaged in three fraud schemes.

Quarantined nurse goes home, military isolates troops

U.S. troops returning from West Africa will be isolated, according to the Pentagon. / REUTERS

Virus. Federal and local quarantine policies are starting to contradict one another.

The U.S. military was isolating personnel returning from their missions to help West African countries curb Ebola, even though they showed no sign of infection and a nurse who treated patients in Sierra Leone was released on Monday to go home to Maine after New Jersey forced her into quarantine.

The decision by the Pentagon goes well beyond previously established military protocols and came just as the White House pushed to roll back steps by U.S. states to quarantine health care workers returning from the three countries at the center of the Ebola epidemic, even if they were asymptomatic.

The Army has already isolated about a dozen soldiers at part of a U.S. base in Italy, including Maj. General Darryl Williams, who oversaw the initial response to the Ebola outbreak, the worst on record.

Some state officials, grappling with an unfamiliar public health threat, have called federal restrictions placed on people traveling from Ebola-affected countries insufficient to protect Americans and have imposed tougher measures such as automatic quarantines on returning medical workers.

The case of nurse Kaci Hickox, put into quarantine on Friday under a New Jersey policy that exceeded precautions adopted by the U.S. government, underscored the dilemma that federal and state officials are facing.

New Jersey Gov. Chris Christie, who has defended his state's policy of automatic quarantine for medical workers returning from treating patients in Liberia, Sierra Leone and Guinea, told reporters he did not reverse the policy in allowing her to be discharged from the hospital.

"She hadn't had any symptoms for 24 hours and she tested negative ... so there's no reason to keep her," Christie said.

Hickox described her quarantine over the weekend in a commentary in the Dallas Morning News.

"I sat alone in the isolation tent and thought of many colleagues who will return home to America and face the same ordeal. Will they be made to feel like criminals and prisoners?" she wrote. REUTERS

Ebola

Returning health care workers should not be quarantined, CDC says

Federal health officials on Monday called for voluntary home quarantine for people at the highest risk for Ebola infection but said most medical workers returning from West Africa would require daily monitoring without isolation.

The CDC said high-risk people include health care workers who suffer a needle stick while caring for an Ebola patient or who don't wear protective gear.

Under new CDC guidelines that spell out four risk categories, most health care workers returning from West Africa's Ebola hot zone would be considered to be at "some risk" for infection, while health care workers tending to Ebola patients at U.S. facilities would be seen as "low but non-zero" risk.

U.N. Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon on Monday became the latest to criticize quarantines, saying through his spokesman these create difficulties for medical workers risking their lives in the battle against the deadly disease.

"Returning health workers are exceptional people who are giving of themselves for humanity," said Ban's spokesman, Stephane Dujarric. "They should not be subjected to restrictions that are not based on science. Those who develop infections should be supported, not stigmatized." REUTERS

Rite Aid is the latest retailer to block new mobile Apple Pay

Rival app. Many chains have entered into an agreement to use Current C, which is still being developed.

Drugstore chain Rite Aid will ban Apple's new electronic payments service in its 4,572 stores as it commits to joining a consortium of other large retailers developing a rival payments system.

Retailers including Walmart, Target and Kohl's have all refused to accept Apple Pay at their stores.

Apple Pay, which was unveiled in September, is a mobile payment app that allows consumers to buy things by simply holding their iPhone 6 devices up to readers installed by store merchants.

Apple CEO Tim Cook talks about Apple Pay. / GETTY IMAGES

Quoted

"[The company is] still in the process of evaluating our mobile payment options."

A Rite Aid spokeswoman told The New York Times that the company does not currently accept Apple Pay.

The rival system, called Current C, is being developed by Merchants Customer Exchange (MCX), a consortium that includes Rite Aid and CVS.

Rite Aid stopped accepting Apple Pay last week. Spokeswoman Ashley Flower said the company is continually evaluating various forms of mobile payment technologies.

On Sunday, The New York Times reported that Rite Aid and CVS Health had refused to accept Apple Pay. CVS did not immediately respond to requests for comment.

"I think these two retailers — Rite Aid and CVS — have committed contractually to MCX," said Nick Holland of Javelin Strategy & Research. REUTERS

Culpable homicide. Pistorius sentence, verdict facing appeal

South African prosecutors will appeal against the culpable homicide verdict and five-year jail sentence passed on Oscar Pistorius last week after public and legal criticism of the judge's decision to absolve the track star of his girlfriends' murder.

The announcement of the appeal came on Monday in a Twitter statement from Nathi Mncube, spokesman for the National Prosecuting Authority (NPA): "Oscar Pistorius judgement, NPA will be appealing both the conviction and sentence."

Mncube confirmed the appeal in an email to Reuters but gave no further details.

During the sensational seven-month trial, the state failed to convince judge Thokozile Masipa of Pistorius' intent to kill when he fired, leading to his conviction for negligent killing — culpable homicide — and a five-year jail term last week. REUTERS

College hazing

Trial begins in marching band death

Three years after the beating death of a Florida college band member brought national attention to its hazing rituals, the alleged ringleader of the abuse went on trial on Monday for manslaughter.

Dante Martin, 27, a former member of the Florida A&M University's celebrated "Marching 100" band, faces hazing charges for his role in the death of Robert Champion, a drum major.

Martin kept his eyes down and jotted in a legal pad as jury selection began in an Orlando courtroom. About a dozen potential jurors recalled their own hazing experiences in band, Greek organizations or on sports teams.

Champion died in November 2011 onboard a charter bus that brought the band to Orlando. REUTERS

Second shooting victim dies

A girl shot during a rampage at a high school in Washington state that left another student dead along with the gunman has died from her injuries, Providence Regional Medical Center in Everett said on Sunday.

Gia Soriano, 14, died on Sunday evening. She was among four wounded in a Friday morning shooting in a cafeteria at Marysville-Pilchuck High School, an hour's drive north of Seattle.

Stup!d MONEY MYTHS Debunked!
At a FREE Workshop

The Ripple Effect
If you are living by the old money paradigm, your financial future is in serious jeopardy. Our country is still feeling the ripple effect from the 2008 financial crash. And, I believe another one is on the horizon.

You Can't Win The Game If You Don't Know The Rules
The rules have changed. Sadly, most people still operate under the old money paradigm: go to school; get a job; work hard; save; invest in a 401k, etc. How's that working out for you? For most people, it's NOT!

Investors Get Money To Work For Them
If you cling to the old money paradigm, you will have to work harder and harder. Investors get money to work for them, instead of constantly working for money. The poor and middle class buy liabilities they mistake for assets. Investors acquire assets.

Need-to-know marijuana stock lessons

I am featured in the November issue of Men's Journal magazine in an article titled, "Buying High: How to Get Rich on Pot Stocks." It's a comprehensive, entertaining and greatly educational story. Here are three of the key takeaways:

Lesson No. 1: The dot-bong bubble is no dot-com bubble

Just because weed is going mainstream doesn't mean the sector is suitable for investment. Marijuana stocks boomed in early 2014 but have since dropped 75 percent to 99 percent, not due to a lack of demand for the product but because nearly all the businesses in this sector are run by questionable characters with questionable business models. Do not make the classic mistake of thinking that just because a business is booming short-term that the underlying company's stock price will boom long-term. This newly legalized sector faces a mountain of obstacles before being ready for the investing public.

Lesson No. 2: The naive blame short-sellers

In every boom and bust, the naive look for a scapegoat, and it's short-sellers who take the fall every time. Whether I shorted these stocks or warned against holding them or not, they all still would have crashed and burned in the exact same manner since there are barely enough shares to short for a few hundred short-sellers. There is nowhere near enough supply to influence the stock prices in any way given that these marijuana stocks traded in excess of 10 to even 50 million shares per day during their peak.

Lesson No. 3: Booms, busts happen to every sector

Marijuana stock investors, like Chinese stock investors, alternative energy stock investors and investors in other hot sectors like to believe their sector is different. It isn't. They're all the same. So marijuana is becoming legal in more places; potheads everywhere, you have my sincere congratulations. Your sector, like every other stock sector in history, got hot for a few weeks and months and then crashed and burned. I'm sure it'll bounce again sometime in the future, too. Don't shoot the messenger or blame short-sellers. Study stock market history, adapt to this surprisingly repetitive cycle and learn to profit in the future. The longer you resist history, the worse is it for you, as you will remain in a constant state of doubt.

A potential Ebola outbreak and the always dangerous month of October combined are putting some fear into U.S. investors, which we sorely needed this late in a bull market.

While we worry about a few cases of Ebola in the U.S., the outbreak in Africa is out of control. That's the real problem.

What Sykes is into this week

Peyton Manning became the NFL's all-time touchdown leader, a well-deserved honor. I just wish his baby brother, Eli, could do better.

The U.S. stock markets came roaring back from recent losses, proving the bull is alive and well after some healthy consolidation.

A heroic teacher tried to stop the Washington state high school shooter during his rampage; we need more teachers like this!

- My toenails are streaked, discolored, thickened.
- The side of my toenails dig into the skin and hurt.
- I have a large bump behind my big toe (or little toe) which is always red.
- I get an extremely painful "cramp" in the area of my third and fourth toes when wearing shoes.
- My toes aren't straight - they are crooked, bent and hurt.
- I have painful calluses on the ball of my foot which keep building up.
- I have corns on my toes which get thicker no matter what shoe size I wear.
- The bottom of my heel hurts all day, but it's worse when I step out of bed in the morning.
- I have cramps in my legs which always happen when I walk the same distance.
- My ankles are swollen most of the time.
- My feet are always dry and scaly - sometimes they itch.
- My feet just hurt all over when I stand or walk a lot.
- I have numbness, burning, infection, persistent pain, skin rash, or open sores.

Oprah: You get a car! — on your foot!

This probably isn't exactly what Oprah Winfrey meant with her famous "You get a car! And you get a car!" routine. The media mogul's SUV recently ran over a woman's foot outside a Miami steakhouse. "It has always been on my bucket list to meet Oprah, but I could never have imagined it would be because her driver ran over my toe," the victim, Lori Geller Bender, tells Page Six. See, that's the thing about the Secret: You have to be specific or else who knows what will happen.

"We were crossing the street to arrive at the restaurant, and there were a lot of cameras. I could see a big crowd of security guards, and as soon as Oprah got into the car, it pulled out from the curb and a wheel went over my foot. I was wearing heels, my toe was trapped under the wheel and I fell to the ground, hitting my coccyx and my head," Geller Bender says. "The driver reversed off my foot and Oprah jumped out. She couldn't have been nicer and more gracious. She looked really shocked and asked me if I was OK, and took a good look at my foot. I wasn't hurt, and I told her I was fine. Oprah said, 'Well, that's worth a picture,' and she put her arm around me and we took some photos." OK, two things: As impressive as her resume is, Winfrey is not an orthopedist, so I'd take her assessment of your injuries with a grain of salt. And two: A lawyer may differ about what "that's worth."

OK Go, 'I Won't Let You Down'

As they are wont to do, OK Go uploaded their newest "how the heck did they do that?!" music video without warning yesterday. It's kinda formulaic, though. Want to know the formula? Drone camera plus Esther Williams-style choreography plus approximately 2,000 Honda UNI-CUBs plus umbrellas that look like dots on an LED screen when the drone ascends into the stratosphere equals another video that's nothing short of a masterpiece from OK Go. So yeah, totally formulaic. But then it's OK to be formulaic when your formula is pure awesomeness. Oh, and as always, the song is pretty catchy, too.

More 'uncoupling' for Chris Martin

So, Jennifer Lawrence and Chris Martin? Not so much dating anymore, at least not according to E! News. I mean, you know what they say about rebound relationships, right? And technically this one was a double-rebound, what with Lawrence splitting (again) from adorable "X-Men" co-star Nicholas Hoult and Martin famously being consciously uncoupled from Gwyneth Paltrow and the corporate offices of Goop Enterprises. Sources say that the uncoupling here wasn't as much of the conscious variety for Martin: "Jen is the one who broke it off with Chris," a source with a knack for stating the obvious tells People magazine.

Leo monkeys around for Halloween

Leonardo DiCaprio knows how to party, and apparently that means wearing a chimpanzee mask. A man believed to be DiCaprio was seen ushering a trio of women clad in skimpy Halloween costumes into a waiting SUV outside of Nobu in Malibu over the weekend. While the men wore casual clothes and masks, the women were dressed up as Sexy Wonder Woman, Sexy Greek Goddess and Sexy Playboy Bunny, which is more than a little redundant. Look, I know it's Halloween and all, but I don't see why celebs like DiCaprio don't just do this all the time. The old cap and sunglasses look doesn't fool anyone.

5 Things Amy Poehler gets real about in her book 'Yes Please'

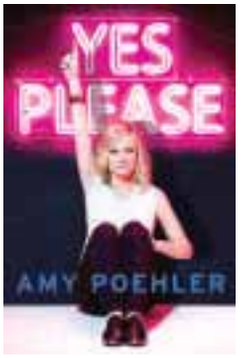
Out today. The comedian brings the laughs and doesn't hold back in her new memoir.

EMILY LAURENCE
@EmLaurence
emily.laurence@metro.us

Amy Poehler's memoir "Yes Please" comes out today, and early buzz is promising it will be just as successful as Tina Fey's "Bossypants" and Mindy Kaling's "Is Everyone Hanging Out Without Me?" Poehler's glossy-paged hardback details everything from her early days of comedy to her "Saturday Night Live" career, but it also has juicy stuff, like sex advice and details on her divorce. Here, we share some of the major talking points so you can get in on the conversation.

1 Divorce
Poehler writes lovingly about her ex-husband Will Arnett and honestly about their divorce: It sucked. "When you are a person going through a divorce, you feel incredibly alone, yet you are constantly reminded by society of how frequently divorce happens and how common it has become," she writes. "You aren't allowed to feel special, but no one understands the specific ways you are in pain." Some experiences don't need a punch line.

2 Drugs
Poehler doesn't hide the fact that she's said "yes please" to most drugs. She chronicles how her father was a happy pot dealer and how she experimented with cocaine, mushrooms and ecstasy. "Cocaine is terrific if you want to hang out with people you don't know and play ping-pong all night. It's bad for almost everything else," she reveals.



PROVIDED

3 Getting older
It turns out that entering your 40s is pretty awesome: "Gone are the days (hopefully) when you take everything personally and internalize everyone's behavior. You get better at knowing what you want and need," writes Poehler.

4 Losing big awards
Poehler has won a Golden Globe and MTV Movie Award, but she's been a loser, too. "You spend weeks thinking about how it doesn't matter and it's all just an honor and then seconds before the name of the winner is announced everything inside you screams ... 'GIMME THAT PUDDING!!' Then comes the adrenaline dump, followed by shame." It's so much easier not being famous.

5 Career counseling
It's only natural to want Poehler's advice on turning creativity into a career. But "Yes Please" is no "Lean In." Poehler explains how important it is to not put your career first: "Your career won't take care of you. ... It will openly flirt with other people while you're around," she writes. She compares a career to a bad boyfriend and says the key to being happy is caring about your work, not the result. "You have to care about how good you are and how good you feel, but not how good people think you are or how good people think you look," she writes.

Q&A MINNIE DRIVER
A STUDY IN FICTIONAL MOM CONTRASTS

Between her work on NBC's "About a Boy" and in the film "Beyond the Lights," out Nov. 14, Minnie Driver is giving a master class in questionable parenting styles. But her kooky Fiona on TV is less dangerous to her child's psyche than her aggressive stage mom to a pop star on the verge of a breakdown. We chatted with her about both characters and the challenges of growing up on TV.

It's interesting to see how different the TV show "About a Boy" is from the film.
I loved the movie a lot. I just watched it on the plane the other day. Toni Colette is so good in that film. But she just couldn't be that dark on TV. It's so beautiful how fragile she is psychologically and that whole notion of "no man is an island," which it's all built around. You have to have more than one person because of our fragility. But I take that sentiment into our show.

Some people see the show as a romantic comedy, with a "will they or won't they" aspect to Will and Fiona.
Anyone with an even basic understanding of satisfaction and psychology knows that if the "will they, won't they" was "they will," they'd lose interest and be disheartened and sad because they don't actually want that. What's fun is to watch the cat chase after the mouse and then the mouse fight back. It's not fun to see the cat and the mouse snuggled up in bed. That's fun for a minute, then it's boring and you have nowhere to go. So I would say the deliciousness is in the anticipation of how it would possibly shake down and watching them get there.

The film can also have a resolution for this group of people, but you need to keep a show going.
I think it's tricky, but if anyone can do it, [executive producer] Jason Katims can. And certainly where we're at in this season, they have me falling in love and having this big relationship, and it's super awkward and dreadful and brings up all sorts of stuff for Will, all sorts of stuff for the kid. It's really interesting. But you do have to keep creating conflict, that's what makes it a comedy. And luckily they're conflicted people who are messy and imperfect. That's what you realize you need to tune into. ... And if that's the formula, then that's all right because you can write around that really cleverly and brilliantly for a long time, I think. Hopefully. I'd like to be doing it for a long time.

How surprised were you by your younger co-star's sudden voice change?
Oh my God, it was so funny. We laughed, we did laugh, bless his heart. I mean, poor thing, he's just growing up on camera. It's not easy, it's awful. But he's so sweet, he's a great boy.

Moving to movies

In "Beyond the Lights," you play this calculating stage mom driving her daughter to pop stardom.
Reality television has defined a caricature of that archetype, but for me, she's got a bit of Svengali in her, a bit of the evil stepmother, a bit of the good mother. You take pieces of each of those and you weave it together. It was a really interesting playground. She encouraged her daughter to be the sexualized version — this cookie-cutter idea of what it is men want to have sex with, what women aspire to be, what's on the cover of magazines.

That behavior might be seen differently if it were a father and son in a sports drama.
You're absolutely right. You frame it a different way and it becomes this story of courage and what it is to be a man. I think it is definitely a double standard.

Q&A JOHN GALLAGHER JR. IN THE FLESH

GETTY IMAGES

Interview. The "Newsroom" star gets into a dodgy Skype relationship in "The Heart Machine."

When not whipping out Aaron Sorkin dialogue on "The Newsroom," John Gallagher Jr. has been keeping busy building up an impressive roster of indie film roles. He follows up last year's "Short Term 12" with "The Heart Machine," in which he plays a young man who starts to suspect his long-distance, Skype-only relationship with a girl living overseas (Kate Lyn Sheil) isn't as it seems.

A Skype-based relationship seems like an odd and emotionally taxing endeavor.
It really is. Also — I was just thinking about this — I met the director over Skype. Just from seeing him for 30 minutes on my computer screen, I was like, "I think I've got this guy pegged." And then four months later when it came time to meet him in person, it was so startling because it was not anything like I'd had in my mind. It's one thing when you're talking over a computer screen. When you get somebody in person, it's obvious there's so much room for it to be something completely different.

John Gallagher Jr. plays a man who only knows his girlfriend (Kate Lyn Sheil) over Skype in "The Heart Machine," out now. / FILMBUFF

How was it exploring the level of paranoia and suspicion that can crop up in romantic relationships?
Someone once told me if you're playing poker, one of the worst things you can do is go full tilt. You start second-guessing everything, and it's really an altered state. That is something that I've certainly felt in past relationships when I've become suspicious or jealous or convinced that I'm not being told the full story. I loved the idea of my character in the film spending the whole movie in that place. Because it's a terrible place to operate from.

Tech talk

The future

When you think of how much technology has changed daily life, it's a mind-boggling.
I remember there's a scene in "The Cable Guy" where Jim Carrey talks about the future and is like, "Someday we'll be able to order food online and you can play 'Mortal Kombat' with somebody in Southeast Asia." I remember seeing that in sixth grade and being like, "Wait, really?" And now it's like, "He was way off, we have even more than that." There's also a part in Cameron Crowe's "Singles" where Campbell Scott hasn't left his apartment in days and he's like, "You don't need to anymore!" But now you look back at 1992 and you're like, "Yeah, you did." Now you really don't have to leave your apartment.

Take a trip to Witch City

All Hallows Eve. Spooky Salem is the perfect Halloween destination.

Salem, Massachusetts, in the month of October is a lot like Punxsutawney, Pennsylvania, during the first few days of February: The town is overrun with visitors from all over the country. But for Halloween enthusiasts, the annual Salem Haunted Happenings celebration is well worth the crowds (and we'd venture to say it's a lot more fun than watching a sleepy groundhog).

Salem isn't just for those obsessed with All Hallows Eve. It's a great getaway for families, American history buffs and horror movie fans. It's too late into the Halloween season to book a coveted room at a hotel or inn in Salem proper, but Boston hotels are only a half hour away.

With so much of the town dedicated to Halloween and the history of the Salem witch trials, we've rounded up the best things to do.

CHRISTINA PACIOLLA

Best place for horror movie fans

At Count Orlok's Nightmare Gallery, you'll come face to face with Michael Myers, Norman Bates, the creature from the "Alien" movies and even Winnie from "Hocus Pocus," which is set in Salem.

The venue is a walk-through horror museum by day, but at night, Count Orlock's turns into a haunted house with zombies and monsters jumping at the chance to scare you. If you're craving even more frights, pay the few extra bucks for the Double Dare pass.

Stock up on spooky swag

Amid the dozens of shops in Salem selling witch-themed mugs, T-shirts and hats, Hex: Old World Witchery stands out. Located across the street from the "Bewitched" statue, this store seems all the more authentic when you find out its second location is in New Orleans. Browse through the store's collection of spell pillar candles, Babylonian jewelry, spell kits and books, and statues of demons and devils.

If vintage is your thing, visit Olde Naumkeag Antiques. Splurge on a 50-year-old Ouija board and then head to Salem Common at midnight to summon the spirits.

Skip the crowds for this one

Almost all of the walking ghost tours available in Salem will stop at the Old Burying Point Cemetery. But on a busy night before Halloween, the cemetery is jam-packed, and it's hard to appreciate its significance with a horde of people walking through. Try to take your own tour around the second-oldest recorded burial ground in the United States when it's less crowded. (And bring a flashlight.)

During your walk, stop at the Witch Trials Memorial to see stones dedicated to those who stood trial, such as Giles Corey, who along with his wife, Martha, was accused of witchcraft. Giles refused to claim his innocence or guilt and was instead pressed to death with stones. He died after two days.

Where to find haunted history

Most people don't realize the alleged witches of Salem were not burned at the stake. The infamous Salem Witch Trials of 1692 and 1693 resulted in 22 executions — 19 of which were hangings.

The Salem Witch Museum, nestled in Washington Square by Salem Common, tells all about the history of the eerie town. It's housed in a former church and the facade seems all the more ominous with a statue of Salem's founder Roger Conant — clad in a cloak — a few feet away.

Your tour starts with a narration of the story of Tituba, the 17th-century slave who was the first accused of practicing witchcraft during the trials. Later, you're led on a guided tour that goes through the history of witchcraft up until the rites practiced among pagans today.

5 Top toys of 2014

Parents magazine has released a list of the coolest new toys out now. EMILY LAURENCE

From "Frozen" toys to pet robot dinosaurs, the slew of new toys released this year is hard to keep up with. To find out which ones are really worth buying, Parents magazine editors — with the help of kids and parents — tested all the new playthings they could get their hands on. They reveal the 58 best toys of 2014 in their November issue, out now.

"We secured early samples of new toys and either tested them in our office with kids or mailed them to families to test," says Parents magazine entertainment editor Jessica Hartshorn. "The editors did a fair amount of testing too, making sure the toys behave as they're supposed to. We want toys that are genuinely fun and worth the money, and try to find toys that have a new twist of some sort." We highlight some of their favorite picks here, just in time for early holiday shopping.

5 Vtech Kidizoom Smartwatch

Who needs the Apple Watch? This electronic watch for kids gives them plenty to do. Between playing games and taking pictures and videos, there's enough on this gadget to keep them busy. $59.99, VtechKids.com

4 Sign Language Alphabet

This wooden block set turns learning American Sign Language into a fun game, which will have lifelong benefits for kids. On one side is the letter and on the other side is the sign, so kids can test each other — and you! — both ways. $21.99, Fat Brain Toys

3 Sesame Street Let's Imagine Elmo

This year's reincarnation is Let's Imagine Elmo. Elmo takes on a different role depending on what hat he's wearing. There are four interactive modes with songs, games and actions. $39.99, Target

2 Wooden Stack & Count Parking Garage

If you're tight on space, you'll appreciate that this parking garage toy is built up, and not out. It's also a learning tool: The colors help reinforce counting. Don't you love it when toys sneak a teaching moment? $20, Melissa and Doug

1 Radio Flyer Cyclone

Designed for kids ages 3 to 7, the Radio Flyer Cyclone lets kids zoom and spin around, all powered by their arms. This self-powered toy lets them do 360-degree spins and go in reverse. $59.99, radioflyer.com

Horoscope

♏ Scorpio | Oct. 23-Nov. 21. Don't offer private information. A casual remark made to the wrong person will cause serious difficulties.

♐ Sagittarius | Nov. 22-Dec. 21. Contribute to your community in some small way. Showing your generous side will spark the interest of someone.

♑ Capricorn | Dec. 22-Jan. 20. You will be distressed by someone who lets you down. If too much pressure is put on your relationship, you will need to consider backing away.

♒ Aquarius | Jan. 21-Feb. 18. Don't hesitate to accept a leadership position within your group. Influential individuals will be impressed by you.

♓ Pisces | Feb. 19-March 20. Come to terms with whatever is preying on your mind. It's hard to move forward when you are still looking back.

♉ Taurus | April 21-May 21. Not everyone will understand what's going on in your personal life or your community. Be diplomatic.

♊ Gemini | May 22-June 20. Don't let your emotions dominate your day. Try not to overreact if someone offers you unsolicited advice. Help will come to you from an unusual source.

♋ Cancer | June 21-July 22. Many people will look up to you if you are conscientious and thoughtful. A recommendation will be made that will lead to a promotion.

♌ Leo | July 23-Aug. 22. If you have been spending too much time in front of the TV, take on a physical challenge. Friends and colleagues may not join in, but don't let that stop you.

♍ Virgo | Aug. 23-Sept. 22. Honesty is the best policy, but you should also be mindful of other people's feelings. A gentle suggestion will be effective.

♎ Libra | Sept. 23-Oct. 22. You will feel especially upbeat and optimistic today. Share your good spirit with everyone you encounter.

Letters

Sykes has good advice, poor delivery

Columnist Timothy Sykes offers good financial advice, but it's clear that many people (from ALL walks of life) find his language egotistical, boastful and not entirely relevant to the advice he is trying to give. If his goal is to help people, it would make more sense to do so with language that will reach more of his audience rather than alienating them.

Re: 'How not to get rich' (Metro, Oct. 27) Does letter writer Monique Chouinard not remember what city Metro is published in? Who the hell cares about this idiot's Lamborghini? I am a young, successful, independent woman. I have a good job, I pay my taxes and I'll be the first to tell you: Even if I were a billionaire, the last thing I would do is waste my money on overpriced cars and houses that are nothing more than pathetic status symbols, things most people don't truly want or need. I find this guy lacks some serious tact, let alone self-respect. Let me sum it up for you like this: Would I really want to take any type of advice from someone who is so low-class that he WANTED to be on a reality TV show about overpriced boat rides and snotty staffs?

Police look into FSU back

Add another police investigation to the list of problems with Florida State's football team. Running back Karlos Williams is reportedly under investigation for a domestic violence incident involving Williams and his pregnant girlfriend. Head coach Jimbo Fisher angrily rebuked a reporter last Friday when asked about a rumor of Williams being suspended, but the school confirmed the ongoing investigation Monday.

Idzik accepts blame, offers few solutions

Short on answers but long on apology, Jets general manager John Idzik did little to remedy a 1-7 season that has quickly slipped away in a Monday press conference.

While he did his best to take ownership of the Jets horrendous season, he offered little in the way of hope or direction for Jets fans tired of yet another wasted year.

"Needless to say we're extremely disappointed. I search for words to describe how we feel, what we're going through and what we've put into it and the results we've achieved," Idzik said. "It's a struggle, it's gut-wrenching, it's brutal. It feels like you've been punched in the face. It's painful. It's particularly painful for our fans, because we're in a business where our actions affect so many."

Idzik, who sat behind a table and spoke with unusual passion, delivered a 19-minute monologue to start his press conference.

Vick will replace Smith as Jets QB

NFL. Rex Ryan named Michael Vick as his starter against the Chiefs after pulling Geno Smith on Sunday.

The Jets are moving on from Geno Smith 24 starts into the second-year quarterback's NFL career.

Head coach Rex Ryan named Michael Vick as starter for Sunday's game at the Chiefs after Sunday's "atrocious" performance from Smith.

Smith was benched during Sunday's 43-23 loss to the Bills following three interceptions in the game's opening four drives. He's shown little development and the 1-7 Jets can hang much of their woeful season on his shoulders. Vick led the Jets on three scoring drives in the first half.

Ryan said on Monday the decision to bench Smith was "about the immediate."

"I'm not looking past this week. This is truly about this week," Ryan said. "It's not any long-term deal."

Turnovers have been a major concern for Smith. He is currently projected to have 20 interceptions, the same as his rookie season. The Jets had hoped he had addressed those issues at the end of last year. Instead, the struggles are just as big as when he was a rookie.

Visit Metro.us to read what John Idzik said about Rex Ryan.

Smith is 9-15 as a starter. He has thrown for 4,416 career yards along with 19 touchdowns and 31 interceptions.

Vick isn't the perfect solution for the Jets' ailing offense, but the veteran is a four-time Pro Bowler and has playoff experience. He still struggles with turnovers though, including two fumbles and an interception on Sunday.

Vick threw 36 passes against Buffalo — the most he's thrown since Week 2 last year.

The Jets have a road game against the Chiefs and then return to MetLife Stadium to play the Steelers.

General manager John Idzik said Smith "has been inconsistent" and he termed the quarterback process "an organizational decision."

"We know we need more consistent quarterback play. When you're trying to develop a young quarterback, there's going to be rough patches," Idzik said. "Is it one step forward, two steps back? Or is it two steps forward and one step back?"

Beason had just 11 total tackles in four games this season, but he was a key cog in 2013. / GETTY IMAGES

NFL. Giants captain Jon Beason out for season with foot surgery

The Giants were hopeful Jon Beason would be able to return from a foot injury after their Week 8 bye. Instead, they've found out he'll be out for the rest of the season.

Beason, the team's middle linebacker and a captain, will undergo surgery on his right foot, but the procedure has not yet been scheduled. Beason injured his toe against the Cowboys last week. He visited foot and ankle specialist Dr. Robert Anderson over the bye week, who recommended surgery. Beason missed all of training camp and preseason with a foot injury suffered in June which required surgery.

By the numbers

The Giants rank a lowly 27th in total defense this season, and only slightly better at 20th in scoring defense.

"We got the guy on the field, he tried [to play]," head coach Tom Coughlin said. "It actually became a little bit different kind of an injury, but the same area. He gave it everything he had and he had the doctor's approval. Unfortunately, it didn't work."

Beason, 29, is actually the second captain on the team to suffer a season-ending injury, joining wide receiver Victor Cruz. Cruz tore his ACL against the Eagles.

MARK OSBORNE

NBA power rankings | by James Toscano

No. 1

Clippers (57-25)

Head coach Doc Rivers has a full year under his belt in Southern California, the circus surrounding former owner Donald Sterling is over, and it seems like only injuries can stop this talented bunch. No more excuses for Chris Paul and Co. As far as depth goes, Glen "Big Baby" Davis and Hedo Turkoglu return and Los Angeles went out and signed veterans Jordan Farmar, Spencer Hawes and Chris Douglas-Roberts.

No. 2

Spurs (62-20)

Their "Big 3" is another year older, but age is just another useless stat to this team.

No. 3

Cavaliers (33-49)

First came LeBron James, then Kevin Love. The Cavs won the offseason and are favorites in the East.

No. 4

Thunder (59-23)

Losing Kevin Durant for the start of the season could be the difference between a top seed and a middle seed this spring.

No. 5

Rockets (54-28)

The Rockets couldn't land any of the big names in free agency and lost Chandler Parsons to Dallas.

No. 6

Warriors (51-31)

Stephen Curry and Klay Thompson remain in the backcourt after the Warriors refused to part with Thompson for Kevin Love.

No. 7

Blazers (54-28)

The starting lineup, led by Damian Lillard and LaMarcus Aldridge, will score — but will they defend?

No. 8

Bulls (48-34)

Pau Gasol joins Joakim Noah in the post. Of course, the health of Derrick Rose will be the key.

No. 9

Wizards (44-38)

The hip pick out of the East this season is the Wizards, who added veteran leadership with Paul Pierce.

No. 10

Mavericks (49-33)

The Mavs snagged Chandler Parsons, Tyson Chandler and Jameer Nelson, among others, while retaining Dirk Nowitzki.

No. 11

Raptors (48-34)

The guys north of the border look to be competitive again. They re-signed Kyle Lowry, which was their most important move.

No. 12

Grizzlies (50-32)

The Grizzlies will remain a tough and gritty bunch after extending Zach Randolph. They also signed Vince Carter over the summer.

No. 13

Heat (54-28)

It was a fun run for the Heat, but without LeBron James' talents, they're no longer considered top dog. That said, they're still a playoff team.

No. 14

Suns (48-34)

The rising Suns finally came to terms with restricted free agent guard Eric Bledsoe.

No. 15

Hornets (43-39)

The "Bobcats" are dead, and that's probably a good thing. They've got a nice little team here.

No. 16

Pacers (56-26)

The biggest loser this offseason is Indy. Lance Stephenson is gone to Charlotte and Paul George broke his leg.

No. 17

Nets (44-38)

After a frustrating 2013-14, the Nets will look to make a little noise with lowered expectations. But can Brook Lopez stay healthy?

No. 18

Hawks (38-44)

A pretty quiet offseason keeps the Hawks where they've been for a while now — a decent team, but not a title contender.

MLS. Red Bulls set to host playoff opener on Thursday against KC

The Red Bulls have known they were in the playoffs for a couple weeks, but New York can finally start to prepare with a schedule in mind.

The MLS announced the playoff schedule late Sunday, as the season wrapped up, and the Red Bulls will play host to Sporting Kansas City on Thursday at Red Bull Arena (8 p.m., ESPN2).

The Red Bulls beat Sporting KC on Sunday, 2-0, behind two goals from MVP contender Bradley Wright-Phillips. The brace raised his season total to 27 goals — tied for the best in MLS history (Roy Lassiter in 1996, Chris Wondolowski in 2012).

BRADLEY WRIGHT-PHILLIPS LED THE LEAGUE IN GOALS BY FIVE. REUTERS

The win on Sunday jumped the Red Bulls over SKC in the final Eastern Conference standings and secured home-field advantage. New York is 2-0-1 against KC this season.

But Kansas City is the defending MLS Cup champions and boast U.S. national team members Graham Zusi and Matt Besler.

The first round of the MLS playoffs is a one-game elimination, with the winner of KC-New York going on to face DC United.

Trouble navigating your depression?

If you are taking medication for depression but feel it is not as effective as it could be, you may be interested in ARGO – a clinical research study that will look at whether using an investigational medication in addition to an approved antidepressant could help alleviate the symptoms faced by people with depression.
We are looking for people:
• aged between 18 and 75 with major depressive disorder
• who have not responded well to at least one antidepressant treatment in their current depressive episode
Study-related medications and procedures will be provided at no cost.
